Representing Canadian Multiculturalism to International Audiences

Mavis Reimer and Doris Wolf, Department of English

Date: April 11 Time: 12:00PM-1:30PM Room: 1L06

Countries around the globe often hold up Canadian multiculturalism as an achievement to be emulated. Within the Canadian academy, however, multiculturalism has been subjected to thoroughgoing critiques and we tend to be highly skeptical about the successes of multiculturalism. What happens when we are invited to participate as scholars in discussions of multiculturalism in international contexts because of Canada's reputation in this area? Please join Mavis Reimer and Doris Wolf in a conversation about presenting and representing Canadian multicultural young people's texts in contexts beyond Canada.
